

Transformations Appoints Jamie Harris as Executive Vice President of Sales

Franklin, TN (May 4, 2018) Transformations, Inc., a recognized leader in the CCM, Security, and Electronic Payments marketplace with Uluro, the company's multi-award winning software, has appointed Jamie Harris as Executive Vice President, Sales.

“Jamie's exemplary industry background and experience make him a tremendous asset to Transformations as we expand the adoption of Uluro into corporate markets,” said Bill Tidwell, CEO of Transformations. “His expertise and success at building a world class sales team and building customer relationships makes him a dynamic addition to Transformations.”

In joining Transformations, Harris brings over 19 years' experience in the document management industry, having held senior leadership roles with leading customer communication management technology companies. His previous roles include sales leadership positions at Exstream and GMC Software, and most recently at Messagepoint. This diverse experience and a track-record of success within the industry positions him very well to expand our proven success in the Service Provider Market as well as expand our recent successes within and across the diverse enterprise landscape.

“I'm excited to be joining Transformations and being a part of the compelling developments underway within our flagship Uluro software,” said Harris. “Having powerful, easy-to-use CCM software has become a business requirement and being able to introduce companies to the power Uluro provides is an unbeatable opportunity to help companies develop stronger and deeper relationships with their customers. Some of our newest Archive, Security and Payment offerings really differentiate Uluro from the pack.”
